

Kaeluma Launch Strategy: June 2026

One-line pitch: Kaeluma turns your family's daily routine into a living RPG — kids earn gold coins and XP for real-life chores, then spend them in a parent-controlled reward shop.

Monetization: 100% free, no ads, funded entirely by parent donations via Stripe.

1. The Honest Assessment

Traditional marketing plans rely on buying attention through Meta or Google Ads. We do not have a paid acquisition budget. What we do have is professional video creation skills, a full Adobe Creative Suite subscription, customer journey email expertise, and an auxiliary audience from Adventures with Amiga.

This strategy converts these creative assets into organic reach, high conversion, and voluntary financial backing.

2. Success Metrics (What "Winning" Looks Like)

We track these metrics weekly. Because we don't charge subscription fees, we optimize for active retention and donation conversion.

METRIC	WEEK 1 GOAL	END OF JUNE GOAL
Waitlist / Signups	200 users	1,000 users
Product Hunt Rank	—	Top 5 of the Day
Organic Video Views	10K total	100K total (Shorts/TikTok)
Activation Rate (≥1 chore created)	40% of signups	50% of signups
Day-14 Retention (still active)	—	≥ 30%
Donation Conversion Rate	—	≥ 3% of active parents
Resend Email Open Rate	≥ 45%	≥ 40%

3. Competitive Landscape (Know Your Enemy)

We position Kaeluma against VC-backed apps by highlighting our two major differences: gamification fidelity and 100% free/ad-free accessibility.

COMPETITOR	WHAT THEY DO	THEIR WEAKNESS	KAELUMA'S EDGE
BusyKid	Chore tracking + debit card for kids	Feels like a chore app, not a game. Expensive monthly subscription.	Kaeluma is an RPG. Kids actually want to play it. 100% Free.
Greenlight	Kids' debit card + financial literacy	Financial product, not a household harmony tool. Monthly fees.	Focuses on habits, screen-time balance, and routine. Free.
OurPact	Screen time parental controls	Punitive ("I block your phone"). Kids resent it.	Kaeluma is earned screen time. Kids own their earnings.
Habitica	Gamified habits for adults	Adult UI, too complex for young children.	Built for kids aged 4–10 with animated XP bars and gold.
Paper Charts	Whiteboards/stickers	Boring, no feedback loop, quickly ignored.	Digital, animated, immediate coin clinking.

Your single most powerful positioning statement:

"Every other app blocks your kids' screen time. Kaeluma lets them earn it — for free, without ads or subscriptions."

4. Value-for-Value Donation Economy

Kaeluma is built as a public utility for parents. There are no paywalls, no child profiles limits, and no locked color themes.

Why This Positioning Works

1. Low Friction: Parents are skeptical of adding another subscription. A free app has an incredibly low barrier to entry.
2. High Shareability: Parents, teachers, and support groups love recommending free resources.
3. Emotional Conversion: When Kaeluma successfully ends morning yelling, parents feel a sense of gratitude. We trigger the donation request at this peak emotional moment (e.g., after a 7-day streak or first reward redemption).

Donation Framing

- Stripe Link: <https://donate.stripe.com/28EfZg6aG810f5zd8ggQE00>
 - Core Message: "Kaeluma has no paywalls or venture capital. It's built by a dad to help families. If it helped yours, consider tipping to keep the servers running."

5. Target Personas

Persona A: "The Overwhelmed Parent" 🥲

- Who they are: Parents of kids aged 4–10. Mornings are stressful. They've tried sticker charts, chore wheels, and raising their voice. Nothing works.
- Their search intent: "how to get kids to do chores without fighting," "morning routine checklist kids."
- Kaeluma hook: "What if your kid did their morning routine before you even woke up?"
- Channel: TikTok, Instagram Reels, parenting forums.

Persona B: "The Gamer Parent" 🎮

- Who they are: Millennial dads and moms who grew up playing RPGs (Zelda, Pokémon, WoW). They love systems, levels, stats, and achievements.
- Their search intent: "gamified chore app for kids," "RPG chore tracker."
- Kaeluma hook: "Finally, a chore system that speaks in XP and loot tables. Introduce your kid to the grind."
- Channel: Reddit (r/gaming, r/parenting), Twitter/X (build-in-public), Indie Hackers.

Persona C: "The ADHD Family" 🗨️

- Who they are: Parents of children with ADHD, ASD, or executive dysfunction. Standard systems fail because the dopamine feedback is too slow.
- Their search intent: "ADHD chore chart visual," "dopamine routine app for kids."
- Kaeluma hook: "ADHD brains need immediate rewards. Kaeluma's coin sounds and XP bars deliver."
- Channel: ADHD subreddits (r/ADHD_parents, r/Parenting_ADHD), Facebook support groups.

Persona D: "The Homeschool Family" 📖

- Who they are: Parents who homeschool. They need daily structure and daily habit completion, and they rely heavily on peer recommendations.
- Their search intent: "homeschool daily schedule structure," "motivate kids homeschool."
- Kaeluma hook: "Give your homeschool day structure, rewards, and a progress system kids love."
- Channel: Homeschool networks, co-ops, Pinterest.

6. Core Messaging Pillars

Every video, email, and social post must touch on one of these pillars:

Pillar 1: "Stop Nagging. Start Questing." 🎯

The anti-nagging message. We position Kaeluma as the family peacemaker.

"Stop asking 11 times. Kaeluma asks once — and gives them 5 gold coins to do it."

Pillar 2: "Earned Screen Time." 📺

Turning screen time from a point of conflict into a family economy.

"In our house, screen time isn't a right — it's an item in the reward shop. 20 gold coins buys 30 minutes of iPad."

Pillar 3: "Built by a Dad, Supported by Families." 👨👩👧

The indie founder narrative. Cultivates trust and drives donations.

"I built Kaeluma because I was tired of starting every morning angry at my 5-year-old. It's completely free, ad-free, and supported only by parents who use it."

7. Channel Strategy & Priority

Tier 1: Highest Leverage (Organic Reach & High Trust)

1. TikTok & Instagram Reels: We leverage our Adobe subscription to create high-pacing video assets with clear on-screen instructions, After Effects overlays, and text hooks.
2. Reddit Communities: Highly targeted, free traffic. One authentic post in an ADHD parent forum can generate hundreds of high-intent visitors.
3. Product Hunt: A top-5 finish builds permanent credibility and organic search rank.

Tier 2: Email & Relationships

4. Resend Email Journeys: Automated behavioral sequences that keep parents engaged, nudge setup, and ask for donations once value is proven.
5. Micro-Influencer Partnerships: Reaching out to parent accounts (5K–50K followers). We offer them the full app (always free) and ask for an honest review.

Tier 3: Auxiliary Launch Booster

6. "Adventures with Amiga" YouTube Channel:
 - Community Post: Announce Kaeluma to families on launch day.

- Description Links: Add a link to Kaeluma in top-performing kids' videos.
- Crossover Video: A single behind-the-scenes video: "How the creators of Adventures with Amiga gamified parenting."

8. Influencer Outreach Playbook

Target creators who share parenting tips, Montessori routines, or ADHD coping strategies.
